

Address of the G-global Team of Rudny Industrial Institute to the world community

The economic situation in the world is uncertain and instable. Crises negatively influence all aspects of social-economic development of society. Therefore almost all countries are trying to develop mechanisms to counter the crisis. The heads of leading countries participated meetings and forums (G8, G20) aimed at finding out solutions to get out of the crisis. However, these meetings took place mainly at the highest political level and do not consider opinions of people living in the countries not included in these unions.

In this regard, Nursultan Nazarbaev the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan announced his initiative to establish G-global communication platform at a solemn meeting dedicated to 20th anniversary of Kazakhstan's independence. This platform is created for development of effective solutions to get out of the global financial crisis by generating ideas of the world scientific community, talented young people, representatives of public and business structures, and development of proposals for the G20.

Nowadays G-global communication platform is a multifunctional Internet platform uniting people from all over the world to discuss global issues of world development. In a short period of time, it has more than 30 000 users from 150 countries.

14 Nobel Prize winners including Robert Mundell, John Nash, Robert Kornberg, Eric Maskin, John Aumann, Finn Kydland, James Mirrlees and others supported this project. Many international organizations in business, education and science joined the project too; they are still current participants of the communication platform.

Intellectual community of Kazakhstan and the world is busy searching for a broad range of solutions to issues that affect the future of the world. Every day they create favorable conditions for international expert community to conduct interactive, open public discussions on social-economic, political, cultural, demographic, and many other issues.

Participants of G-Global communication platform establish cooperation in the field of their scientific and business interests while publishing their research results and sharing personal points of view on a wide range of topical issues.

The Association of «Eurasian Economic Club of Scientists» regularly conducts competitions within the annual Astana Economic Forum for participants of G-global communication platform. The works of winners are published in the journal «Eurasian Economic Review» which is famous for publications of great people including Nobel Prize winners, well-known political, public figures and scientists. Winners are also awarded diplomas, certificates and money prizes aimed at support of further research work.

Young people, especially students, play an important role in social development of Kazakhstan, and this influence has been repeatedly emphasized by Nursultan Nazarbaev the President of the Republic of Kazakhstan.

Nearly half the world's population is represented by young people under the age of 27 years. Most of them live in urban areas and are involved in the global information system. Today they have all the necessary qualities to develop and implement measures to improve social-economic system of Kazakhstan, to promote innovations, to advance principles of «green economy», etc. In this regard, it has become urgent to address global issues and challenges, particularly in terms of global economic turmoil by involving young people at regional, national and international levels in the process of discussion and development of incentive mechanisms. The young generation is expected to be an active guide in implementation of measures aimed at addressing modern issues of national and world economy, not just an indifferent observer.

Concerning all mentioned above and the upcoming Astana Economic Forum, we invite students to G-global movement which aims to implement the ideas of Nursultan Nazarbaev the Head of State with G-global communication platform.

Sign up on the official website of the Communication Platform www.group-global.org.

Get involved!

It is important for me, for you, for Kazakhstan, for the whole world!